Celebration Party THE Place To Be

With the 1st Annual Poker Tournament in town here, there has been a sweltering of visitors and residents milling around town this week. As the tournament dwindles down, anticipation for the celebration party only grows. The party is planned to take place tonight at the Deadwood Cantina, Friday, October 20, 1874. The party is planned to reward the prize money to the winner and to celebrate the success of the tournament. Many of the visitors as well as the locals will be in attendance. Among those that are expected are:

Harry High-Stakes—Cantina Owner. As the organizer of this grand event, Harry has a lot at stake if it is not successful!

Henrietta High-Stakes—Business partner to Harry High-Stakes. Spending less and less time at the cantina lately, could Henrietta be into something or someone else?

Gambling Jack—Card player. The best hand in poker either side of the Mississippi, Jack has not lost a major tournament in the last five years. Until now.

Anna Belle—Backer and friend of Gambling Jack. Known as Jack's good luck charm, some say Anna Belle is the reason Gambling Jack never loses.

Mitch Maverick—Traveling Businessman. As the winner of the tournament, many question how a businessman could have such great card skills. Could Mitch be the next poker phenomenon?

Holly Hickok—Card player. A real southern belle with a flare for poker, many wonder what a girl like Holly is doing in the Wild West?

Clay Coldwell—Card player. A once known poker-great, Clay may no longer be lucky in cards, but he may be proving to be lucky in friendship.

Montgomery Money—Land Investor. Arriving just this last night, word is Montgomery has his eye on purchasing the cantina and is using this traveling opportunity to seize it.

Elizabeth Money—Sister to Montgomery Money. Although Elizabeth has been here scouting land prospects for her brother all week, she is still not used to the rough and rugged ways of the West.

Minnie Money—Debutante. As the sheltered daughter of Montgomery Money and niece of Elizabeth Money, Minnie's first trip out west has been an adventure that has taught her a lot about the wild ways of the West and the people it breeds.

Banker Bob—Bank Owner. After the Bank of Deadwood was robbed earlier this week, Bob suspects the culprit is someone in need of ante money for the poker tournament. Will Bob take justice into his own hands to punish the bandit?

Banker Bonnie—Business partner to Banker Bob. Desperate for Bob's attention, Bonnie will do anything to get it. Anything.

Jesse Wales—Outlaw. Is Jesse here to meet up with old acquaintances or is this purely a business trip?

Poker Alice—Poker Dealer. Alice makes her living dealing cards at the cantina, but could she be hiding more than her loyalty to her favorite barmaid?

Sheriff Sam—Deadwood Sheriff. Although Sam is considered the law enforcement of this town, it has been said the only way to get anything 'enforced' is by padding Sam's wallet.

Marshal Dalton—Federal Marshal. The Marshal was assigned to Deadwood to insure that there is no unlawful activity at the poker tournament. With outlaw rule becoming the way of the West these days, it is time the federal government put some order into place.

Sally Starr—Cantina Girl. Because of Sally's strong allegiance to both Harry and Henrietta High-Stakes, Sally will see to it that the cantina thrives at all costs—but what price is too high?

Taffy Garrette—Cantina Girl. Taffy is the eyes and ears of the cantina, someone who might know a little too much about what is about to go down.

Barb Cassidy—Outlaw. Barb has been in town all week and no one knows quite why.

Billie-The-Bartender—Cantina Barmaid and Bookkeeper. Billie knows the cantina life from every side of the coin and has her own suspicions about who is holding the cantina back from succeeding.

REWARD

$5,000

For information about the bandit who robbed the Deadwood Bank earlier this week. Information MUST lead to apprehension or death of the bandit. Please see Banker Bob.

Poker Tourn Draws Far, But Not Wide

The draw for this tournament has been a huge success, with card players coming from all parts of the Union. Poker greats such as Holly Hickok and Gambling Jack have made their way up from the South and we have even seen some faces from the East make their way to these parts to join in on the fun. While the card playing talent has reached record highs for these parts, the actual number of card players is not as abundant as anticipated. Some believe that the caliber of card playing talent is so great that most amateur card players chose not to compete. Others speculate that with a $2,500 ante, the stakes were just too high for the average card player. Of course, the $100,000 purse is the highest known pay-out at this time.

MURDER AT THE DEADWOOD CANTINA

Harry High-Stakes

The owner of the Deadwood Cantina, you are very proud of your establishment. Less than a year ago, you founded the cantina. In that short time, your cantina has gained much popularity and prominence in the community. While you would like to say that the cantina's popularity was all part of a well thought out business plan, it was not. You simply founded the Deadwood Cantina in hopes of making a legitimate and steady income when you returned home to Henrietta (your business partner) and the town of Deadwood after five years of gold-digging.

While you were away searching for gold, you made yourself a small fortune robbing stagecoaches with your old partner in crime, Jesse Wales. After robbing the stagecoaches, you would often spend a great deal (if not all) of your loot at the poker tables where you earned the nickname of "High-Stakes." Your nickname refers to your tendency to bet away large amounts of money in one single hand. For this you are famous and it is no wonder that you are known by so many across the land.

Even though your cantina has blossomed in the past year, your partnership with Henrietta has not. Henrietta has threatened to turn you over to the authorities (with proof of your past, outlaw ways) if you did not start turning a real profit at the cantina and show Henrietta the proper (financial) attention that she deserves. In response, you purchased a very nice necklace for Henrietta and it seems to have quieted her for the time being.

Although the cantina has become very popular, you are having problems paying the bank on time and in full. Since opening the cantina, you have bet away the majority of the cantina profits. If you cannot find a way to earn some of the money back, you may end up losing the cantina to the bank this month. The prospect of losing your cantina became real to you when you heard a rumor that Montgomery Money (an investor from the East) is traveling to Deadwood to scout out the cantina. While in Deadwood, Montgomery is talking with Banker Bob (the bank owner) about purchasing the cantina from the bank if it goes into foreclosure. In an attempt to save your cantina from being repossessed, you turned the books over to Billie-The-Bartender (your barmaid) hoping that she might find a solution for your financial troubles. He has not. To complicate matters, Sheriff Sam (the sheriff) has been blackmailing you in order to keep your card playing problem a secret from Henrietta. If Henrietta knew what the true root of the cantina's financial problems were, you are certain she would turn you over to the officials immediately! In addition to the bank, you are also in debt to a number of other people, including your very deadly ex-partner Jesse Wales. Jesse notified you last month that they would be stopping by to collect what you owed and you dread Jesse's arrival.

In a last-ditch effort to save your cantina and dig your way out of debt, you decided to throw the grandest of grand poker tournaments. It was your vision to create a tournament that would attract the best poker players at the highest stakes and thus provide you with a large profit. In your tournament, you are offering a purse of $100,000, a monetary amount unheard of in this time. Unfortunately, not enough card players entered the tournament for you to draw a substantial profit. As a result, you enlisted Gambling Jack (one of the card players and an old-time buddy of yours) to help you. You agreed to let Jack cheat in the tournament if he would return the winnings to you. Since Gambling Jack always cheats (a secret only you know), you threatened to reveal his secret and ruin his card playing career if he did not comply. Gambling Jack agreed to help you, but somehow still managed to lose in the tournament. You are going to have to find a way to raise money for your cantina and fast!

As the Deadwood Poker Tournament Party approaches, you realize that it is your last chance to turn a large profit and keep your cantina from foreclosure. At the party, you plan to be the perfect host and encourage everyone to buy sarsaparillas and dance tickets from your cantina girls in order to make enough money to save your cantina!

Acting and Dressing Your Part: The owner of the cantina, you will dress with class. Assured and suave, it is vital to hide the fact that you are afraid of losing the cantina from everyone. Some may suspect you are getting in over your head financially, but you are to remain confident. You will end the night ahead. *For more ideas on how to dress and a glossary of wild western words and phrases to use at the party, please see the party tips section at www.nightofmystery.com. Henrietta High-Stakes

The business partner of Harry High-Stakes (the Deadwood Cantina owner), you have not always (and still do not) have a solid partnership. Your partnership troubles started over six years ago when Harry left you to seek out fortune in the Black Hills. When Harry originally left, you expected him to be gone for a few months, but he didn't return for nearly five years! When Harry returned a little less than a year ago, he seemed genuine about seeking your forgiveness and wanting to start a new business with you. Because of Harry's apparent devotion to starting over, you found it in your heart to forgive him and attempted to rebuild your old friendship. Your decision to stay with Harry was in part due to the fact that in Harry's time away, he had accumulated some gold. With Harry's newfound wealth, Harry established the Deadwood Cantina, promising you that his investment was all with the intention of providing a better life for you.

Despite Harry's good intentions, your partnership continues to struggle. Even after promising you a better life financially, you have witnessed Harry wasting cantina profits at the card tables. You are worried about the cantina's financial situation and you have heard rumors that the cantina may soon be reclaimed by the bank if Harry does not pay up. After expressing concern over the cantina's finances, Harry turned the books over to Billie-The-Bartender (the barmaid of the cantina). Even though you are not pleased with your partner, you do not want to lose the cantina. As a woman in the West, you know that if you split from Harry, you would receive nothing, but if your partner were to end up dead (or in jail), his share of the cantina would be yours. For that reason, you want Harry to keep the cantina. Knowing Harry would never want to lose you, you threatened to leave the business if he could not show you the proper (financial) attention that you deserve. Harry responded by giving you a rather expensive necklace that you adore.

In addition to your partnership problems with Harry, you are frustrated and irritated with the bankers in town, Banker Bob and Banker Bonnie. As the holders of the cantina loan, Banker Bonnie and Banker Bob are aware of the financial trouble that you are in and they are trying to take advantage of the situation. Rumor has it that Banker Bob has already sought out a new investor to purchase the cantina pending the foreclosure of the cantina. Recently, you have noticed Banker Bonnie frequenting the cantina and you wonder why she is spending so much time in your establishment. Just the other day you saw her having a sarsaparilla with Barb Cassidy. Whatever Banker Bonnie is up to, you do not like it.

In recent weeks, you have noticed the cantina girl's profits dwindling. Because of this, you mandated that your cantina girls only sell dance tickets to the highest-paying customers until the cantina is debt-free. Sally Starr (a devoted employee) was very saddened by this, since she admires Clay Coldwell (a low-paying customer), but you have every reason to believe that Sally will abide by your wishes.

As the Deadwood Cantina Poker Tournament Party approaches, you are looking forward to attending. Since the cantina is in desperate need of money, you are hoping for a great turnout! At the party, you plan to be the perfect hostess while also seeing how much money you can try to solicit for the cantina to keep it out of foreclosure.

Acting and Dressing Your Part: As the business partner of the organizer of this grand event, you relish being what you consider the center of this extravaganza. To the grand event, you will want to wear a fancy dress with a ruffled skirt, accompanied by the beautiful necklace that Harry High-Stakes gave you. *For more ideas on how to dress and a glossary of wild western words and phrases to use at the party, please see please see the party tips section at www.nightofmystery.com. Gambling Jack

Known as the best of the best at poker, you are not accustomed to losing in any fashion. When you entered the Deadwood Poker tournament, you assumed an automatic win at the poker tables. However, when you realized that the tournament was being held by your old friend, Harry High-Stakes, you were not certain that a win was in the cards for you.

You first met Harry in his outlaw days when Harry spent a great deal of time with Jesse Wales (another outlaw). It was no secret that in those days Harry would go about stealing money and then lose it at cards at the nearest cantina or card house. At the card tables, Harry became a good friend of yours. Harry is the one who taught you to cheat, something you have mastered to a tee. In fact, you have become such a master at the art of cheating that NO ONE has ever caught you and for the last five years you have been on a winning streak. Because of your excellent slight of hand and ability to count cards, you have become known as the best hand in poker. Only Harry knows your secret of how you retain your reputation.

Once you found out that Harry was the organizer of the tournament, you were uncertain if Harry would condone your cheating ways at his tournament. However, when you arrived in Deadwood, Harry approached you with a proposal. Harry made it clear that he would allow you to cheat and keep your cheating a secret only if you would win the tournament and give back the winnings. (Despite the cantina's popularity, Harry owes the bank a great deal of money and he must repay that debt if he does not want to lose his cantina.) In order to save your reputation and your career as a professional card player, you agreed to Harry's request. Unfortunately, you experienced some bad luck and regardless of your best cheating efforts, you lost in the final round of the tournament. Because Harry was depending on you to win the tournament in order to save his cantina, you are worried about how Harry will react. More than anything, you need to keep Harry from telling your secret. If word gets out that you are a cheater, your career (and your good name) would be ruined!

In addition to letting Harry down by your loss, you are also worried about letting down your wealthy backer and longtime friend, Anna Belle. You met Anna Belle when you were just starting a highly unsuccessful career at card playing. Anna Belle's family fortune is what funded your career through those tough years of many financial losses. Since your career has made a distinct turnaround (when you started cheating), Anna Belle has stated that she is very happy she stood by you. Earlier today, Anna Belle was quite shocked when you lost the tournament and she insists that someone else must be cheating. Coincidentally, you think that Poker Alice (the poker dealer) may have witnessed you cheating, but she has yet to say anything. With the potential of your cheating secret being exposed, you fear losing Anna Belle's trust and, more importantly, her wealth. Anna Belle has a hot temper and you fear she may take it out on Holly Hickok, a female card player who has been sweet-talking with you (and all of the other male card players) all week.

While you fear Harry's reaction, you know that you must attend the Deadwood Poker Tournament Party in order to congratulate the winner, Mitch Maverick, and to make amends with Harry. At the party, you hope that Anna Belle does not make a scene about your losing or Holly's sweet-talk.

Acting and Dressing Your Part: A show-off to everyone, at the party you will have to constantly be on your best behavior, both in front of Anna Belle and those watching. Since you are a very successful poker player, you have a very distinguished wardrobe which may consist of a button down shirt, vest, tie and hat (bowler, derby, slouch, card player or other). Popular in the time period, you may also consider adding in facial hair. *For more ideas on how to dress and a glossary of wild western words and phrases to use at the party, please see please see the party tips section at www.nightofmystery.com. Anna Belle

A true southern belle, you treasure your longtime friend, Gambling Jack. Many years ago, you caught up with Jack while he was playing cards for high stakes down on the riverboats in Charleston. At the time when you met Jack, he had a losing record at the poker tables. Despite his unsuccessful career, you believed in Jack and he relied on your money. At the beginning of the relationship, it was you (with your family money) that funded Jack's desire to be a professional poker player. Since then, Jack has turned his career around to become one of the best poker players around. As a woman who likes attention, you very much enjoy being the backer of a poker phenomenon.

Among your duties as a faithful backer and friend, you have traveled here to Deadwood to support Jack while he played in the Deadwood Poker Tournament. Since Jack is on a five-year winning streak, you greatly enjoy coming to the tournaments to watch him win. Jack has always referred to you as his 'good luck charm' and that is exactly what you intended to be. However, after witnessing Jack's loss in the tournament earlier today, you are enraged and convinced that someone must have cheated. How else could Jack lose? After observing the other card players in the tournament, you are sure that Holly Hickok was the one who MUST have cheated and caused Jack to lose. Earlier this week, you caught Holly sweet-talking Jack and a woman with such a lack of morals is sure to be a cheater, too. While at the tournament, you have also seen Poker Alice (the poker dealer) watching Jack very closely. Not wanting to trust any of the women, you watched Alice more closely only to observe that Billie-the-Bartender has a fond loyalty to Poker Alice, one you think that Alice may be taking advantage of.

While Jack is more concerned about saving face at the tournament party tonight and bonding with Harry High-Stakes (an old-time buddy), you are focused on getting revenge on whoever put Jack's good name to shame by causing him to lose. Although you are happy to attend the Deadwood Cantina Poker Tournament Party to be sociable with the other party guests, you also look at the party as an opportunity to defend Jack and his good name!

Acting and Dressing Your Part: As a dignified woman, originally from the South, you consider yourself above all of the people from the West. Drawing from your roots, you will want to wear a Victorian style dress, along with a hoop skirt and carry a parasol. At the party, you will hold yourself with an air of superiority and insist that someone has cheated Jack out of winning the tournament. Mitch Maverick

As a con man, you have taken on many aliases throughout your life, the latest one being Mitch Maverick. When you heard about the Deadwood Poker Tournament with the grand prize of one hundred thousand dollars, you were very intrigued. Since you have recently been working your cons in the territory east of the Mississippi and you have no contacts in Deadwood, you figured no one would know your face or know of your cons. With your anonymity in Deadwood, you reasoned it was a great place to pull your next con. Currently, you are being sought out by a few not-so-friendly outlaws, hired to hunt you down after you conned a wealthy businessman in Chicago. Their reminders of the money that they want you to repay have become increasingly urgent and painful and you are in desperate need of money to repay them.

After arriving earlier this week in Deadwood, you recruited a partner-in-crime to help you with your con, Clay Coldwell (a local resident). Clay was also participating in the poker tournament and did not believe his own chances of winning the tournament were very high. After learning this, you promised Clay half of any winnings from the tournament if he were to help you to cheat. Clay took you up on this offer and, with Clay's help, you were able to win the tournament and the purse of $100,000. Even though you intended to keep your promise to Clay and split the winnings with him, you have suddenly become very greedy and have decided to keep the money for yourself. Currently, Clay thinks you are going to meet him at the train stop later tonight after you are awarded the money. At the train stop, Clay is expecting you to split the winnings as promised, and make sure that you get out of town without getting caught!

On top of your business here in Deadwood, the beautiful Minnie Money (a debutante from the East) has caught your attention. Minnie is both gorgeous and wealthy, two things you desire in a woman. However, yesterday when Minnie's father arrived in Deadwood, you realized that she was a woman you would not want to get further involved with. After learning this, you chose to avoid Minnie and she was not very happy with your decision to ignore her. After witnessing Holly Hickok (another card player) and yourself having dinner last night, Minnie confronted you and the two of you fought about the reasons for the sudden end to your brief relationship.

With all of the happenings in Deadwood, you are looking forward to collecting your money at the Poker Tournament Party and getting out of town! Although you are dreading seeing Minnie at the celebration, you know that you must attend in order to receive your winnings. While at the party, you plan to try to keep a low profile, as you are sure there are many that will want you dead!

Acting and Dressing Your Part: Although, you claim to be a wealthy businessman from the East, you have made a living out of getting people to trust you and then stealing their money. Because of this, you possess a very friendly and talkative nature. Since you are a businessman and not a professional card player, you will pretend to be surprised and humbled about your winnings. To the party you will want to dress consistent with the times and wear a button-down shirt, vest, and hat (bowler, derby, slouch, card player or other). Holly Hickok

As an independent woman in the West, you possess many capabilities, the best of those being the ability to manipulate anyone to get what you want. Often your tactics to achieve this fall nothing short of lying, bribery, blackmail and the like. Of course, you keep these abilities all hidden beneath a beautiful and fancy exterior. Although you are in the West, where most of the women are perceived as hard and rough, you keep yourself well groomed with fancy petticoats and beautiful garments. In your travels, you have realized that Southerners gain more advantages, so you have adopted a southern accent which comes in handy when you want to get your way.

After your mother abandoned you at a young age, your father to raised you with all of his poker-playing buddies. You could say your knack for manipulating men started quite young because by age 10 you had your daddy and his friends eating out of your hand. At the age of 18, you left home to explore the world!

Since leaving home, you have relied mostly on your poker playing abilities to fund your lifestyle. When you feel like your luck is a bit down, you borrow and steal from the people you meet on your travels to make ends meet. While this lifestyle is one that would shock many, you love it!

When you heard about the Deadwood Poker Tournament, you decided to enter and test your skill. Although you are not known as one of the top poker players, your looks and charm often provide you with an advantage. During your week here in Deadwood, you have been very friendly with most of the players in order to gain knowledge. Despite the innocence of your sweet-talk, you may have stepped over the line when you talked to Gambling Jack (another card player). After Anna Belle (Gambling Jack's backer) noticed you conversing with Jack, she began glaring at you and you are certain that Anna Belle is one who desires revenge.

Last night in another attempt to gain an advantage in the tournament, you had dinner with Mitch Maverick to earn his trust, talk strategy and to hopefully use that information to throw off his game today. Evidently, your ploy did not work because Mitch beat you in the final round of the tournament, becoming the grand champion. Because you now have a bond with Mitch, you are still hoping that you can convince him with your charming ways to spend some of the winnings on you.

While your dinner with Mitch did not win you an advantage at the poker table, it may have won you an enemy in Minnie Money (a debutante) who witnessed you dining with Mitch. Apparently, Mitch and Minnie had a short-lived friendship while in Deadwood that came to an end abruptly before your dinner. While you are not to blame for the break-up, apparently Minnie does not see it that way and you fear that Minnie will act out and cause a scene.

Despite losing in the tournament, you are still excited to be attending the Deadwood Poker Tournament Party. At the party, you plan to celebrate the week and the friends you have made, as well as see what kind of profit you can turn now that you have lost the tournament.

Acting and Dressing Your Part: An independent and vivacious woman who knows her way around the wild west and the poker tables, you will be outgoing and spontaneous at the party. Although you are not from the South, you claim to be and thus, try to speak with a southern accent. For the party you plan to dress to impress with a fancy dress, stockings, and a feather boa. *For more ideas on how to dress and a glossary of wild western words and phrases to use at the party, please see please see the party tips section at www.nightofmystery.com. Clay Coldwell

As a local card player, you are competing in the tournament at the Deadwood Cantina to earn yourself a healthy paycheck. In the past, you were known as one of the top poker players in the West. Unfortunately, with the popularity of poker and the rising stakes for the game, a number of players have emerged that are far more skilled than you. These days, you often find it hard to even make a living by card playing.

When you first heard about the Deadwood Poker Tournament, you were expecting to be able to sweep the local tournament hands-down. However, after seeing some of the big names that have traveled to Deadwood to also participate in the tournament (Gambling Jack and Holly Hickok, to name a few), you started to doubt your chances of winning. With these feelings of doubt, you were happy when Mitch Maverick approached you earlier in the week. Mitch claimed to be a businessman from the East with a few tricks up his sleeve and he offered you half of his winnings from the tournament if you would help him to cheat. Knowing that the chances of winning the tournament yourself were slim, you took Mitch up on the offer. To you, this seemed like the perfect scenario because if Mitch was caught cheating it was his neck on the line, not yours. Regardless, you helped Mitch to cheat without getting caught and Mitch won the poker tournament without suspicion. Now it is just a matter of collecting the money from Mitch and getting him out of Deadwood without anyone suspecting your immoral and illegal dealings. After Mitch is awarded the money tonight, you have plans to meet him at the train stop where you plan to split the money.

As a regular of the cantina, you enjoy playing cards at and spending your money on dance tickets with the cantina girls, in particular, Sally Starr. After countless hours of dancing with Sally, you have found yourself devoted to her. However, this week you noticed Sally soaking up a lot of attention from the other visitors in town and you question if Sally has any true feelings for you or if you are simply another one of her clients. Sally has even refused you dance tickets for more high-paying customers - something she has never done in the past! Because you question Sally's true feelings, you think it is time to concentrate on winning the friendship of someone new. Minnie Money (a debutante who is visiting from the East) has certainly caught your attention this week. Although Minnie has spent much time with Mitch Maverick this week, Mitch has assured you that he ended his friendship with Minnie and has absolutely no intentions of pursuing Minnie anymore. Furthermore, Minnie comes from a family with wealth, a trait you find appealing. You plan to focus your attention and friendship on her.

With the Deadwood Cantina Poker Tournament Party approaching, you find it will be the perfect place to get to know Minnie better, as well as see if Sally's feelings for you are genuine or money-driven. Until you are awarded your share of the profits, you plan on enjoying the Deadwood Poker Tournament Party to its fullest!

Acting and Dressing Your Part: As a resident of Deadwood and a cowboy at heart, you dress with a flare for the West. You may wish to wear cowboy boots, spurs, chaps and a shoestring tie or you may wish to have a more distinguished wardrobe which may consist of a button down shirt, vest, tie and hat (bowler, derby, slouch, card player or other). Popular in the time period, you may also consider adding in facial hair. Montgomery Money

A man of wealth and prestige, you are originally from Chicago, a land far to the east of Deadwood. In search of an opportunity to expand your fortune, you have made your way out to Deadwood looking for some land and possibly an establishment to invest in. Among the establishments that you are scouting is the Deadwood Cantina which is rumored to be very close to foreclosure. With the poker tournament in progress, you thought that this would be the perfect time for you to visit Deadwood and to check out your potential investment.

Although this is your first trip to Deadwood, you did see a familiar face upon arrival - Mitch Maverick. Mitch Maverick is a con man who had conned you out of a great deal of money. Two months ago, Mitch convinced you to invest some money into a scheme in which he promised you that you would profit $150,000. Instead of profiting, you ended up losing $100,000. It was a week after you had turned over your money to Mitch before you realized that Mitch had left town and had taken your money with him without any intention of returning any profits to you. Of course, at the time, Mitch went under the alias Victer Hammick. In an attempt to make Mitch pay for making a fool out of you, you had Mitch located by your associates who discovered that he was planning on attending the Deadwood Poker Tournament. Because you wanted to catch Mitch by surprise, you stalled your arrival in Deadwood until later in the week by staying in St. Louis on your business trip. If you arrived earlier, you were afraid that Mitch would be tipped off on the sight of you and leave town. While in Deadwood, you are certain that Mitch is planning on pulling another con and you want to make sure that he does not get away with stealing money again.

Earlier this week, your sister and daughter (Elizabeth and Minnie) arrived in Deadwood to help you scout out the land. Your family thinks that you are out here solely to invest in property, mainly the Deadwood Cantina . Because your sister and daughter have never been west of the Mississippi, you are unsure how they will react to this unruly land. Elizabeth has told you of the bank robbery that happened in town earlier this week and she expressed a great deal of concern that such unlawful behavior is happening in their midst.

As the Poker Tournament Party draws closer, you are looking forward to attending, getting to know some of the local business people and residents, as well as getting your sister and daughter's perspectives on the town of Deadwood. Unbeknownst to your sister and daughter, at the party you are also planning on completing some unfinished business with Mr. Victer Hammick a.k.a. Mitch Maverick.

Acting and Dressing Your Part: A dignified man from the East, you own an expensive and distinguished wardrobe which may consist of a button down shirt, vest, tie and hat (bowler, derby, slouch, card player or other). Popular in the time period, you may also consider adding in facial hair. As a businessman, your dealings in the past have taught you to trust no one. Being left-handed and obsessed with time, it is important that you wear a watch on your right hand and check it often. Elizabeth Money

As a woman of the East, you are both liberated and educated. Being from a much less rugged environment than the West, you favor your fancy clothes and your clean nature. As her aunt, you have helped raise Minnie (your niece) the same way.

The sister to Montgomery Money (a wealthy investor), you and your niece have traveled to Deadwood on business. Montgomery is thinking of investing in land out here and he has voiced wanting your opinion on the matter. While in your home city of Chicago, Montgomery heard of the potential of the Deadwood Cantina being for sale by the bank. Being raised in the East, you have never cared much for anything you have heard about the West or 'it's people.' You were appalled when Montgomery told you that he was considering investing in the West, and you thought it best to travel with him on the venture to Deadwood so that you could help him make a rational decision.

Unfortunately, Montgomery was delayed on business earlier this week in St. Louis and was not able to join you until late Thursday night. You have spent the week in Deadwood with Minnie scouting out the city and the possible land investments around it. While you dislike Deadwood, Minnie has been fascinated by the cantina life, something that you are certain you will have Montgomery talk to her about.

Just last night, Minnie returned to your room later than normal and very upset. Shortly before returning to your hotel room, you heard Minnie in the hallway arguing with Mitch Maverick (a card player) where he ended whatever short-lived friendship they were having. Later, you plan on instructing your brother to have a talk with Minnie about getting mixed up with these "men of the West" and, in particular, Mitch Maverick.

Elated that Montgomery has finally arrived in Deadwood, you hope that he does not have any interest in investing out here. Not only do you disapprove of the ruggedness of the land, but the unlawfulness of the town upsets you as well. Earlier this week, there was a bank robbery at the Bank of Deadwood and you have seen little movement on the investigation by Sheriff Sam (the sheriff), while he allows known outlaws (Jesse Wales and Barb Cassidy) to roam the town freely!

As the Deadwood Poker Tournament Party approaches, you hope that it is the last event that you will have to attend before you leave the town of Deadwood forever. While at the party, you hope to make it clear to Montgomery that you do not want him doing business in the West. Additionally, the party will provide you with an opportunity to keep a close eye on your niece Minnie, and make sure she keeps herself out of trouble and away from dangerous men!

Acting and Dressing Your Part: As a dignified woman of the East, you like fancy clothes and consider yourself a woman with class—a thing obviously very foreign to the people here in Deadwood. You consider yourself above most locals and are most drawn to the people in town and at the party that are more educated, wealthy and originally from regions such as the East and the South. To the party, you will want to wear a Victorian-style dress with ruffles and lace gloves. A large, decorative hat and a parasol are other accessories you may want to consider. *For more ideas on how to dress and a glossary of wild western words and phrases to use at the party, please see please see the party tips section at www.nightofmystery.com. Minnie Money

As a sheltered young woman, you were surprised when your father and aunt (Montgomery and Elizabeth Money) agreed to let you accompany them on a trip to the West. After leading a very conservative childhood in Chicago, you were promised that when you turned 18 you would get the opportunity to travel. Because of this promise, you insisted on joining your father and aunt on this business venture to Deadwood and they agreed. Although your father claims that this is a business trip, you suspect that he has other motives. Although your father has told you that he is considering investing in the land in and around Deadwood, you have never known him to want anything to do with the West or "it's people". Unfortunately, your father got delayed in St. Louis earlier this week, but you and your aunt arrived on time and have spent the week together in Deadwood.

Regardless of your family's business matters, you are in Deadwood to have a little fun and to see the land. This week, you have spent a great deal of time viewing the poker tournament. You have snuck out to the cantina after your aunt has gone to bed each night to hang out with the locals that frequent the cantina. Along with others, you and Mitch Maverick (a card player in the tournament) have had a short-lived friendship and shared many secrets with one another. One secret that Mitch told you was that he was cheating in the poker tournament with Clay Coldwell (another card player). Mitch had promised Clay half of any winnings that he was awarded, but Mitch also let you know that he was planning to keep all of the prize money for himself. Despite your close bond with Mitch, your relationship with him ended last night when Mitch started giving you the cold shoulder. After being ignored, you witnessed Mitch dining with Holly Hickok (a female card player). Afterwards, you confronted Mitch and the two of you argued. He ended any shred of a relationship that was still there.

With your dance card open, you plan to focus your attention on Clay Coldwell. Not only will becoming close to Clay make Mitch jealous, but also Sally Starr (a cantina girl). You have noticed that Sally admires Clay, but often Sally has to overlook Clay for higher-paying customers. Since you will not be charging for dance tickets, you believe that you can give Clay the attention he deserves, while earning some attention for yourself from Mitch - the person whose attention you truly wish to capture.

As the Deadwood Poker Tournament Party approaches, you are looking forward to attending. Not only will the party be a great place to mingle with friends (and enemies), but with all of the colorful characters that have made their way to Deadwood this week. It is certain to be a rootin' tootin' good time!

Acting and Dressing Your Part: Originally a conservative girl from the East, you have found and adopted a certain flare and spunk while visiting the West. Because of your background, your clothes are fancy, straight-laced and feminine. By nature, you are outgoing and you love to attract attention and cause controversy. A true free spirit, you will do as you please, despite whom it may upset. While at the party, you will refuse to let others hinder your actions. *For more ideas on how to dress and a glossary of wild western words and phrases to use at the party, please see please see the party tips section at www.nightofmystery.com. Banker Bob

As the bank owner in the town of Deadwood, you do business with many of the people in the town and also some of the participants of the Deadwood Poker Tournament. One of your foremost clients is Harry High-Stakes (the Deadwood Cantina owner). In order to get the cantina established and operating in it's first year, you have loaned Harry a substantial amount of money. Although the cantina appears to be doing very well, you are uncertain why Harry is continually delinquent and sometimes misses his payments on his loan. Just last month, Harry was late again on his payment and you warned him that you will have to put his cantina into foreclosure if he cannot repay the money he owes on the loan by next month. You suspect that Harry is throwing the Deadwood Poker Tournament in order to get enough money so that he can repay his debt. This will be an important week to see if you will gain your money back from Harry's loan or if you will gain control over the cantina.

Because Harry is such a difficult and delinquent client, you hope that you will gain control over the cantina. If the cantina becomes the bank's property, you speculate that you may have a very wealthy buyer in Montgomery Money, an investor from the East. Because of Montgomery's reputation, you are certain that you will make a healthy profit off of selling the cantina to Montgomery and he will be consistent and reliable when making his loan payments.

In addition to all the excitement of the tournament, your bank was held up at gun point. Banker Bonnie (your business partner) was watching the bank over the noon hour while you were meeting with Harry about his payments. Because of the high ante for the poker tournament, you are convinced that the robber must have been a card player who was trying to accumulate enough money to pay for the entry fee. Since you view Sheriff Sam (the sheriff) as a very lazy individual, you plan on taking matters into your own hands when it comes to finding the culprit of the bank robbery and bringing them to justice! In addition, you do not believe that Sheriff Sam is a moral character as well. Just this past week, you saw Sheriff Sam taking money from Harry High-Stakes. While you do not know the details of the transaction, the secretive nature in which the money was exchanged suggests that it was not for an honest reason.

As the Deadwood Poker Tournament Party quickly approaches, you are looking forward to attending for a few reasons. First, the party will be a perfect place for you to talk business with Montgomery Money about his intentions on investing in the cantina if your bank gains control of it. Second, you plan to figure out which one of the poker players may have robbed your bank and you plan to bring them to justice! And lastly, by the end of the night, you will know whether Harry will have enough money to pay off his debt to you or if the cantina will be yours!

Acting and Dressing Your Part: As the bank owner of Deadwood, you are a businessman first. Your bank and your money come before everything, including your partner Bonnie. Since you will be using the party to for business matters, you will want to dress dignified for the night. Consistent with the times, you may consider a button down shirt, vest, ascot and hat (bowler, derby, slouch, card player or other). Popular of the time period, you may also consider add ing in facial hair. *For more ideas on how to dress and a glossary of wild western words and phrases to use at the party, please see please see the party tips section at www.nightofmystery.com. Banker Bonnie

As the business partner of Banker Bob, you help him to run the Bank of Deadwood. Although Bob has always been a businessman at heart, lately his business seems to be occupying all of his heart, leaving no room for you. At first, you withdrew from Bob and started spending more time at the cantina. With your absence from the bank, you were hoping that Bob would miss you and become jealous of the time you were devoting to other matters. When Bob had no reaction to your absence, you went to more extreme measures.

Earlier this week you staged a hold-up in your bank with Barb Cassidy (an outlaw). Over the noon hour, when you were certain that Bob would be away, you arranged for Barb Cassidy to rob your safe at gunpoint. Although you knew your life was not in danger, Bob did not. With your life threatened, you figured Bob would realize how important you are to him, but that did not happen. After the hold-up, all that Bob cares about is finding the culprit and his lost money. Now it seems that you are going to have to make sure more than ever that your secrets stay hidden from Bob. If Bob knew what you had done to his business and his money, you fear Bob would leave you.

Luckless and lonely, the only thing that you have to cling to is your pride and your money. Many people in town, Henrietta High-Stakes (Harry's business partner) in particular, think of you as snotty and that you lord your money over them, but you do not find that to be the case. While spending time at the cantina, you have noticed that Harry has some very devoted employees, in particular, Sally Starr (a cantina girl). With the cantina close to foreclosure, you worry about the jobs of everyone in the cantina.

With the Deadwood Poker Tournament in town, you are hoping to make some new friends to help you relieve the pain of your failing partnership. If Bob does not start giving you the attention you deserve, you may just take the money from the bank robbery and start your own new life.

Acting and Dressing Your Part: As the bank owner's business partner, you are arrogant and snotty at times. Since you come from a family of wealth, you will dress in a more fanciful dress and less rugged than most women of the West. *For more ideas on how to dress and a glossary of wild western words and phrases to use at the party, please see please see the party tips section at www.nightofmystery.com. Jesse Wales

Although most people know you as a rough and rugged outlaw, you were once a farmer. After a few years of leading a tiresome, farming life, you awoke with aspirations of becoming a bandit! At that point, you decided to take off in search of a more exciting life yourself - one that would reap fame and fortune!

Along your travels, you hooked up with Harry High-Stakes about six years back. You met Harry at a cantina where you were partaking in the sarsaparilla and he was partaking in the poker. Harry was a big card playing man back then, hence how he got his name. At the cantina, you lent Harry some money and he tripled your money for you that night. The two of you were instantly friends. After meeting Harry, you convinced him to leave his business partner, Henrietta, in search of gold and fortune with you.

In those days, going off in search of fortune often meant seeking out gold in the Black Hills. The two of you, however, knew just where to find gold—on the Wells Fargo stagecoaches. In the time that you and Harry were operating as partners, you became a successful duo robbing the stagecoaches that were transporting gold from the West back to the East. After robbing the stagecoaches, you would spend much of your earnings at the cantina. Harry would spend his at the card houses.

In the latter years of your partnership with Harry, you experienced some close calls where you barely escaped the law. At that point, Harry took off in the middle of the night, taking all of your joint winnings and leaving you with a note. In the note Harry explained that he was going to return to Deadwood to start a cantina and that he would return all of the money he took from you, plus interest, in one year's time. Although you weren't planning on collecting the money so soon, you have recently found yourself without an income due to a debilitating injury. A few weeks ago in a getaway attempt, your left hand was shot-up leaving you unable to handle a gun with your left hand. Since your left hand is your shooting hand, you have been left without any earnings for some time now. Because it has been slightly over a year since you and Harry split, you decided to come to Deadwood to collect the money owed to you by Harry and to visit a few old acquaintances.

Since being in Deadwood this week, you alerted Harry that you desire to collect on your debt before leaving Deadwood. Harry assured you that if you stuck around until after the Poker Tournament Party, he would have the funds for you. Additionally while in town, you have seen both Poker Alice (the poker dealer) and Barb Cassidy (an outlaw). Although Poker Alice claims to be an upstanding citizen, you know her as "Assassin Alice", a very deadly bandit who is wanted by the law. While at the cantina, you have noticed that Billie -The-Bartender (the barmaid) fancies Poker Alice, and you plan to warn Billie against Alice. If Alice is half as deadly as her reputation claims, you believe pursuing a relationship with Alice could be very dangerous!

As the Deadwood Poker Tournament Party approaches, you can't wait to attend! Since the party is the only thing keeping you from getting your money from Harry, it can't come soon enough. Once the party is over, you just want to get your money and get out of town!

Acting and Dressing Your Part: An outlaw by nature, you hold a very rough and rugged exterior and dress accordingly. A cowboy hat, boots, spurs, holster, gun(s), and a bandana are all things you may consider for your outfit. Although you don't say much, you do enjoy intimidating people with your presence. Because your left hand was shot-up in a gunfight not too long ago, it is important that it is bandaged. *For more ideas on how to dress and a glossary of wild western words and phrases to use at the party, please see please see the party tips section at www.nightofmystery.com. Poker Alice

Born Alice Ivers in England in 1851, you were educated in England and moved with your family to the new land and settled in the West. Shortly after settling, you found yourself bored with the farming lifestyle and ran off with Black Bart, a bandit! Over a years time, you and Bart gallivanted over the West reaping havoc with many unlawful and deadly acts, earning you the name of "Assassin Alice". Unfortunately, Bart was soon caught and hung for his dastardly deeds. Not wanting to end up like your dead partner-in-crime, you found yourself alone and seeking a new, exciting-but-lawful life in the West.

Once single, you began hanging out in card halls, where you became a professional poker dealer. As a popular poker dealer, you moved around and worked at various card houses and often travelled to wherever was paying the most money for their dealers. However, about six months ago when you were passing through Deadwood, Harry High-Stakes (the Deadwood Cantina owner) offered you a steady job tending bar and dealing cards at his cantina. Harry's offer was too good to refuse and you decided to settle here in Deadwood.

Even though your life in Deadwood is simple, you keep it exciting. Billie-The-Bartender (the Deadwood Cantina barmaid and bookkeeper) admires you and, while you enjoy the attention that she pays you, you have hesitated at furthering the relationship. Since Billie is concerned about staying on the "right side" of the law, you fear she may be unaccepting of your outlaw past. Although you have yet to return Billie's feelings of loyalty, you know that you can exploit Billie's adoration to get whatever you want from her, including information on the cantina. Among other tidbits, Billie has told you that the cantina is in financial trouble and that Harry does not trust Henrietta (Harry's business partner) with the finances of the cantina.

With the tournament in town this week, you have seen Jesse Wales (an outlaw) back in Deadwood. There are rumors that Jesse is back in town to collect a debt from Harry, but you also suspect that Jesse's motives might be to expose you. (There is a reward out for your apprehension.) Coincidentally, during Jesse's visit to town, you have noticed that Jesse has been spending some time with Barb Cassidy (another outlaw). You wonder if Jesse's relationship with Barb is strictly business or pleasure.

With the poker tournament over, you are looking forward to the Deadwood Poker Tournament Party. While dealing cards in the tournament, you had the opportunity to observe an array of distinct characters that were visiting Deadwood. At the party, it will be interesting to see how everyone interacts in a room together for the evening. In addition, you are anxious to see Gambling Jack (a card player in the tournament). Although Jack did not win the tournament, you are certain that you witnessed Jack counting cards and you wonder what his reaction will be when you confront him about his cheating. In addition, you are fairly certain that Clay Coldwell (a card player) may have also been cheating, but you have no proof in the matter.

Acting and Dressing Your Part: As a real woman of the West and a resident of Deadwood, you dress with a flare for the West. Within your outfit, you may want to include boots, a hat, a bandana, shoestring tie, spurs, fringe, chaps and any other accessory you desire. *For more ideas on how to dress and a glossary of wild western words and phrases to use at the party, please see please see the party tips section at www.nightofmystery.com. Sheriff Sam

Although you are the official "ruler" of Deadwood, it tends to rule you. Because you live in a time and place where the law is tremendously disrespected, there is no harmony in Deadwood. The town's justice system is dictated more by vigilantes and outlaws than by your badge. Since your past efforts to uphold the law have failed, you have decided to receive bribes in order to maintain a stable environment. Your philosophy has become to let bygones be bygones as long as the town remains in a somewhat peaceful state.

Although being the sheriff of Deadwood does not pay very well, it does have its benefits. Besides trying to enforce the laws, you do earn a hefty sum by taking bribes. Among the people who have gotten in the habit of bribing you is Harry High-Stakes, the cantina owner. When Harry High-Stakes wanted to establish the Deadwood Cantina, you were aware of his outlaw background and questionable amounts of money. However, Harry offered you a good sum of money to overlook his unlawful past and suspect amounts of money. In return, you granted him a deed to open the cantina. And the bribes did not stop there. Three months ago, you overheard Henrietta threaten to leave Harry if he could not dig himself out of debt. When you threatened to tell Henrietta of Harry's large card playing problem (the cause of his debt), Harry agreed to start paying you weekly for your silence.

Despite the normal quiet nature of Deadwood, this week has been quite the opposite. With the Deadwood Poker Tournament being run at the cantina, the federal government has sent in a U.S. Marshal to oversee the happenings in town. With the Marshal here, you need to be on your best behavior since they will be overseeing you and how you perform your job. In addition to the tournament, there was also a bank robbery in town this week. Banker Bob (the bank owner) has been pressuring you to find the bandit who robbed his bank, but you have yet to discover any leads.

With the Deadwood Poker Tournament Party coming up, you are excited to attend. At the party, you are determined to identify and apprehend the bank robber in order to prove to the Marshal that you are an effective sheriff. If you were to lose your job as sheriff, you would lose your financial security.

Acting and Dressing Your Part: As the sheriff of Deadwood, your authority is being questioned by the Marshal being in town. Don't be afraid to act like you are in charge, even if you are not. Be sure to remember your badge, guns and holster. *For more ideas on how to dress and a glossary of wild western words and phrases to use at the party, please see please see the party tips section at www.nightofmystery.com. Marshal Dalton

As a U.S. Federal Marshal, your job is to enforce the law and to make sure that chaos does not break loose in newly founded territories. This week, you were sent to Deadwood to do your job. There is rumor Deadwood is run by a crooked sheriff, Sheriff Sam, and while you are here you intend check up on Sam and his questionable practices. In addition to checking up on Sam, you are also in Deadwood to make sure everything runs smoothly and that there is no unlawful activity at this week's poker tournament and festivities. The poker tournament is an event with a lot of money at stake!

Since you have been in Deadwood this week, you have observed Sheriff Sam conducting a very lax investigation into a bank robbery that happened earlier this week at the Bank of Deadwood. Sam's laziness has angered Banker Bob, the bank owner whose money was stolen. Because of Bob's anger, you fear that Banker Bob might decide to take matters into his own hands and bring the robber to justice himself.

Regardless of your feelings for Sam, it is your job to observe and to try to run things to the best of your diplomatic nature. You are looking forward to coming to the Deadwood Poker Tournament Party to make sure that everything goes as planned and that the money gets awarded to the right person. Seeing the laziness that the sheriff exhibits when running an investigation has convinced you that you will need to take charge if anything happens at the tournament celebration party.

Acting and Dressing Your Part: As a U.S. Marshal sent here to whip this town into shape, you act diplomatic and authoritative. At the party, you will let everyone know that you mean business and will not let anyone get away with anything. Do not forget to bring your badge, gun(s) and holster. *For more ideas on how to dress and a glossary of wild western words and phrases to use at the party, please see please see the party tips section at www.nightofmystery.com. Sally Starr

As one of the prettiest and most popular cantina girls at The Deadwood Cantina, you are also one of the most faithful employees. As a cantina girl, you work nightly in the cantina selling dance tickets to the customers who will pay for them.

When you arrived in Deadwood, you were very poor and without a job. On your trip to Deadwood, your brother was killed in a raid on your wagon but you were able to escape and made it to Deadwood. Once in Deadwood, it was Harry and Henrietta High-Stakes (the cantina owners) that took you in and gave you a job. As a result of their kindness, you feel as though you owe them the world. Because of your loyalty, you have stood by both Harry and Henrietta, even though you might not approve of their behavior. In the last couple of months, you have witnessed Henrietta become very money-hungry and demand that Harry go above-and-beyond to shower her with gifts. In addition, you have witnessed Harry's card playing habit go from bad to worse. Even though you do not approve of these behaviors you would do anything to keep your "cantina family" together.

Although the tournament has been good for business, you prefer the time when there were not so many strangers in the cantina. Because of your popularity, your attention this week has been split between the travelers and card players that are here for the tournament and your regular customers—in particular Clay Coldwell. Because you have devoted a lot of time in the past to Clay Coldwell, you have grown very loyal to him and find yourself growing devoted to him. Despite your deep loyalty to Clay, Henrietta High-Stakes has ordered that you only sell dance tickets to the highest-paying customers this week in order to earn the most profits. This has caused you to stay away from Clay (you often give Clay your dance tickets for free). At first you were very distraught by the order, but Henrietta confided in you that the cantina is having some financial troubles and, since this mandate is only until the cantina is out of debt, you agreed.

With the Deadwood Poker Tournament Party swiftly approaching, you are excited to attend. Being the biggest party this side of the Mississippi, you anticipate earning loads of money selling dance tickets. Once the cantina is out of debt, you are sure that you will have ample time to spend time with Clay Coldwell, but right now you need to do your job!

Acting and Dressing Your Part: As a cantina girl, you should dress a little fancier with the intention of attracting people to with you and purchase more beverages from the cantina. To the party, your attire may include a ruffled skirt or dress with a bodice, feather boa, and/or a feathers in your hair. *For more ideas on how to dress and a glossary of wild western words and phrases to use at the party, please see please see the party tips section at www.nightofmystery.com. Taffy Garrette

As a resident of Deadwood, a small western frontier town, you were very happy when the Deadwood Cantina was established a little over a year ago. At the time of the cantina opening, you were living with your parents on the outskirts of town. However, once you started working for the cantina, you earned enough money to move out of your parent's house and to treat yourself to fancier clothes and beautiful jewelry. Currently, you live above the cantina in the heart of town.

As one of the most popular cantina girls here in Deadwood, you relish your job. At your job, you are paid well and you are constantly adorned with attention. Among the other benefits of your job, you are close to what you deem as your 'cantina family' and, in particular, Sally Starr. Sally and you share a tight bond as cantina girls and you admire her. Currently, Sally is devoted to Clay Coldwell (a local resident and card player) and you are certain he is devoted to Sally as well. Unfortunately, due to the cantina's recent financial troubles, Henrietta High-Stakes (your employer) has mandated that all of the cantina girls spend the week focusing on the higher-paying customers who are traveling to Deadwood. Because of this, you worry that Sally has alienated Clay and made him feel left behind. While you know that Sally is simply overlooking Clay to honor your employers wishes, you fear that Sally is choosing her job over heart.

With the poker tournament in town, you have noticed that there are a number of peculiar things happening in and around the cantina. Harry High-Stakes (the cantina owner) has been acting quite nervous and you assume it is because of the $100,000 purse of the poker tournament he is awarding for the poker tournament. At a time when the cantina is rumored to be in great financial trouble, you cannot fathom how Harry can award both the grand purse prize and pay the bank what he owes. In addition, you have noticed that Banker Bonnie (Banker Bob's business partner) is spending a great deal of time around the cantina and you wonder what Bonnie may be up to. Knowing how loyal Bonnie is to the bank, you believe she may be staking out another scheme to help Bob gain control over the cantina. Among the visitors in town who are frequenting the cantina, you have also noticed Minnie Money (a debutante from the East). As a cantina girl, you dislike the amount of time Minnie is spending with your customers and, in particular, the winner of the tournament, Mitch Maverick. Although you do not have anything against Minnie personally, you just want Minnie to keep her distance from your paying customers in the cantina so that you can earn some money from dance tickets.

With the Deadwood Poker Tournament Party quickly approaching, you are looking forward to earning a great deal of money by selling dance tickets to the patrons of the cantina. As a devoted cantina girl, you wish to earn funds both for your salary and to help the cantina thrive. If the cantina were to go under, or change management, you know your lifestyle would change. That is something you do NOT wish to happen! At the party, you hope to be the center of attention (and of gossip) throughout the night.

Acting and Dressing Your Part: As one of the cantina girls, you work for money by dancing and getting customers to buy beverages from the cantina. At the party, you will dress nicely to attract more customers - perhaps a fancy dress with a bodice and ruffled skirt. You may also consider stockings, a feather boa or feathers in your hair, all of which make perfect accessories! *For more ideas on how to dress and a glossary of wild western words and phrases to use at the party, please see please see the party tips section at www.nightofmystery.com. Barb Cassidy

Earlier this week, you traveled to Deadwood for business, but ended up staying for pleasure. You are a bandit by nature, a trade not taken on by many women of this time, but that is what makes you so successful at it. The authorities are rarely looking for a woman when they are seeking out perpetrators, which helps with your getaways by allowing you to go unnoticed as the guilty party. Earlier this week, you were hired by Banker Bonnie (Banker Bob's business partner) to stage a bank robbery in her partner's bank. Although Banker Bonnie's motives for staging the hold-up confused you, the pay was good and you got away with the crime without a problem. (Later, you only had to return half of the money to Bonnie in secret.)

While you were in Deadwood, you ran into Jesse Wales (another outlaw). Intrigued as to why Jesse may be in town, you decided to stay and see what all the excitement was about. During your stay, Billie-The-Bartender (the cantina barmaid) has caught your attention and you have taken a special interest in her. During the time you have spent at the cantina trying to capture Billie's attention, Billie has often been distracted. When you inquired as to what was on her mind, Billie confided in you that the cantina was in some financial trouble and that it was up to her to balance the books. While you believe Billie's story, you also wonder if Billie's heart may be somewhere else. You have seen Billie look admiringly at Poker Alice (the poker dealer) and you wonder if Alice may be the object of Billie's loyalty. You do not care for Poker Alice due to her past. A once wellknown, deadly bandit (Assassin Alice), Poker Alice now pretends to be a law-abiding citizen. You find Alice's newly-found, righteous attitude disingenuous and fake. Despite Alice's holier-than-thou exterior, you know that she is as deadly as they come and you don't like it!

Despite your ongoing dislike of Poker Alice, you are excited to attend the Deadwood Poker Tournament Party. At the party, you hope to get the answers to some of your questions, reconnect with others, show Poker Alice that you are more of a woman than she is and drum up some bandit business if you can! By doing all this, you are certain that you can gain the attention and loyalty of Billie-The-Bartender!

Acting and Dressing Your Part: As a bandit by nature, you are more tough and rugged than most women, but still dress with a feminine flare. Considering your trade, you may want to dress in cowboy boots, spurs, chaps, as well as bring gun(s), a holster and a bandana. Although you dress for the rough lifestyle you lead, you are still feminine at heart and love to wear bright red lipstick to accentuate this. *For more ideas on how to dress and a glossary of wild western words and phrases to use at the party, please see please see the party tips section at www.nightofmystery.com. Billie-The-Bartender

As the barmaid and bookkeeper of the cantina, you consider yourself an integral part of the Deadwood Cantina. Because of your long-standing relationship with Harry High-Stakes (the cantina owner) Harry trusts you immensely. Just three months ago, Harry asked you to start managing the cantina finances. You are honored that Harry would ask you to take on this task instead of his business partner, Henrietta. Although you have been doing your best to make the finances balance and to keep the accounting straight, somehow the sales and the profits do not match. The only conclusion you can draw is that someone must be stealing from the cantina. Until you can figure out who is to blame for the losses, you have decided to keep quiet about the situation.

As the barmaid for the Deadwood Cantina, you lead a rather comfy life. You have grown accustomed to the regulars that frequent the cantina and you would hate to lose your lifestyle because of the cantina's financial troubles. Because you have been responsible for the financial ends of the cantina, you are aware that the bank has been threatening to repossess the cantina, which is the last thing that you want to happen. If the bank does repossess the cantina, there are rumors that Banker Bob (the bank owner) will sell the cantina to Montgomery Money (an investor). Under Montgomery's control, you fear the investor will care little for the establishment, its customers or its employees.

Among other things, your job provides you with the opportunity to spend time with Poker Alice (the poker dealer). Over time, you have come to know Alice quite well and think you may be growing devoted to her. Because Alice keeps her emotions hidden, you are not sure if she feels the same way for you. Although you are only loyal to Alice, you have noticed Barb Cassidy (a bandit) shows you a great amount of attention while in the cantina. Unfortunately, you are not interested in teaming up with Barb Cassidy and you are trying hard to find a way to let Barb down easy. The last thing you want to do is make an enemy out of an outlaw!

Despite your feelings for Alice, your main goal is to keep your job by keeping the finances of the cantina in order. Although the tournament was supposed to bring in a great amount of profits, it has not. After Harry pays out the winner of the tournament, the cantina will not have enough money to repay the bank and the cantina will have to close its doors forever. If the cantina goes out of business, you do not know what you, or any of the other cantina employees, will do.

With the Deadwood Poker Tournament Party quickly approaching, you are excited for the event to happen. Although you cannot see the party making as much money as you need to dig the cantina out of debt, Harry insists that by the end of the night, you will have more than enough money to pay the bank back in full! With that reassurance, you are excited for the party and all the customers that you will service!

Acting and Dressing Your Part: As the barmaid for the cantina, you are suave and debonair and have a way of complimenting each of the customers in your bar. You have learned it earns you better tips! Don't forget your apron and a Western barmaid look (no mustache). Cantina Girl A

As a cantina girl at the very popular Deadwood Cantina, you work nightly making money by selling dance tickets to cantina customers. Since the Deadwood Cantina is so highly-trafficked, your job is relatively easy and provides you a healthy income in a low-stress environment.

With the Deadwood Poker Tournament being held at the cantina, your profits have definitely increased this week. There are travelers and card players from all walks of life coming to Deadwood for the tournament! The increased traffic in the cantina has worked to your advantage because it has translated into more dance tickets and more money for you.

Although the cantina is packed every night until close, you have heard rumors that the cantina may owe the bank money and be close to foreclosure. To validate these rumors, you are considering questioning Billie-The-Bartender (the cantina barmaid and bookkeeper) on the true financial situation of the cantina. There must be an underlying reason for the financial trouble that the cantina is experiencing.

Aware that Harry High-Stakes (the cantina owner) has a questionable past, you wonder if the cantina's financial troubles have anything to do with Jesse Wales (an outlaw and Harry's old partner) that is in town this week. Although, Harry claims that the money he used to establish the cantina came from his gold-digging days, you wonder if those days were the same ones he spent with Jesse Wales. You don't trust Jesse Wales and would hate for the cantina to close because of Jesse-it means your job if nothing else!

With known outlaws in town (Jesse Wales and Barb Cassidy), it comes as no surprise to you that there was a bank robbery earlier this week at the Bank of Deadwood. The robbery has made everyone nervous and you believe that is why Marshal Dalton (a Federal marshal) is currently working in Deadwood.

With the poker tournament coming to an end, you are going to be sad to see your increased business taper off but you are looking forward to the poker tournament party at the cantina. The Deadwood Poker Tournament Party is sure to be a grand celebration! At the party, you expect to make a lot of money on all of the customers that will be in attendance to see the grand prize awarded.

Acting and Dressing Your Part: As a cantina girl, you will come to the party dressed to sell dance tickets and help everyone enjoy their time while at the cantina. Within your wardrobe you have many fancy clothes which may include a dress with a ruffled skirt and a bodice. In addition to a dress, you may accompany your outfit with a feather boa, feathers in your hair, long beads, concealed weapons, fringe or tassels. *For more ideas on how to dress and a glossary of wild western words and phrases to use at the party, please see the party tips at www.nightofmystery.com. Gambler A

As one of the card players that participated in the First Annual Deadwood Poker Tournament, you are sad to see it come to an end. Despite losing in the second round of the tournament, you had a great time competing in the tournament and met a lot of people, both card players and locals, who made your experience in Deadwood most memorable.

A few of the people that you got to know well during the tournament were two card players; Clay Coldwell (a local resident of Deadwood) and Mitch Maverick (a businessman from the East). Even though these two men had never met prior to the tournament, they have developed a close friendship in just one week's time. In the past, Clay was a very successful poker player. However, over the years, Clay's luck and talent have deteriorated and Clay was not able to win this tournament. On the other hand, Mitch Maverick went on to be victorious in the tournament which will award him $100,000 with minimal card playing experience. It puzzles you how a man who claims to be a businessman could beat all of the professional poker greats that were at the tournament! Mitch must have some secrets up his sleeve and you hope that he will let you in on them.

In addition, you have also met a debutante who has caught your attention, Minnie Money. Despite your interest in Minnie, she has shown interest in only Mitch Maverick this week. It is apparent that Elizabeth Money (Minnie's aunt) is not happy with Minnie's choice in companion and you are hoping that you can win the friendship of Minnie if you get the chance. On top of trying to flatter Minnie, you believe that if you can win the approval of Minnie's family, Minnie's friendship may follow.

With the tournament over, you are excited to attend the Deadwood Poker Tournament Party. It will be nice to be social with those that you competed with this week. While at the party you plan to enjoy yourself while also seeking out the attention of Minnie Money, if she can get over her infatuation with Mitch Maverick.

Acting and Dressing Your Part: A card player at heart, and will carry a deck of cards wherever you go. Since it is 1874, you will dress consistent with the times which may include a button down shirt, vest, suspenders, a hat (bowler, slouch, cowboy, etc) and may even consider facial hair. *For more ideas on how to dress and a glossary of wild western words and phrases to use at the party, please see the party tips at www.nightofmystery.com. Cantina Girl B

As a cantina girl at the very popular Deadwood Cantina, you work nightly making money by selling dance tickets to cantina customers. Since the Deadwood Cantina is so highly-trafficked your job is relatively easy and provides you a healthy income in a low-stress environment.

While at the cantina lately, you have noticed an increased presence of both Banker Bonnie (Banker Bob's business partner) and Barb Cassidy (an outlaw). It seems odd to you that Banker Bonnie would be spending so much time at the cantina and not with Banker Bob (her partner). In addition to Bonnie's peculiar behavior, earlier this week you witnessed Bonnie exchanging money with Barb Cassidy while at the cantina. Although you do not know what Barb Cassidy is doing in town, you know that Barb Cassidy has a very dangerous past and is usually up to no good! While at the cantina, you have noticed that Barbara makes it no secret that she admires Billie-The-Bartender (the cantina barmaid and bookkeeper) even though you do not believe Billie returns Barbara's interest. Instead, you have noticed that Billie is looking admiringly at Poker Alice (the poker dealer). Unfortunately for Billie, she will have to think of an easy way to let Barbara down without angering her, unless Billie intends to use Barbara's interest to her advantage.

With the poker tournament coming to an end, you are going to be sad to see the business taper off but you are looking forward to the Deadwood Poker Tournament Party at the cantina. As one of the card players that participated in the First Annual Deadwood Poker Tournament, you hate to see it end. Even though you lost in the second round of the tournament, you had a great time competing. While you do not believe that you would have gone on to win the entire tournament, you also do not believe that the tournament was run fairly. The tournament was won by Mitch Maverick, a businessman from the East. Even though you do not suspect Mitch of foul play, there are other card players in the tournament that you do not think competed fairly.

While competing in the tournament, you are certain that you saw Gambling Jack (another poker player) cheating. You viewed Jack's cheating as obvious, but neither Poker Alice (the poker dealer) or Harry High-Stakes (the cantina owner) ejected Gambling Jack from the card tables. Later, you realized that Gambling Jack and Harry High-Stakes were old friends and you presume that Harry allowed Gambling Jack to cheat in his tournament because of their close friendship. In addition, Holly Hickok (a female card player) used her good looks and feminine charm to gain favor and/or distract other card players. Regardless of their cheating efforts, neither of these players won the tournament, so you can feel justified that their deceiving antics did not win out in the end.

With the tournament over, you are excited to come to the Deadwood Poker Tournament Party. It will be nice to be social with those with whom you competed with this week. In addition, you feel somewhat justified that the card players who were cheating did not win the purse and you look forward to seeing it awarded to Mitch Maverick.

Traveler A

A traveler from the East that has come to Deadwood to visit for the grand poker tournament, you have never been so entertained! Traveling further west than you have ever before, you were excited to see the new territory. The stories that you have heard about the rough and ruggedness of the land and the people who live in the West have always intrigued you and have exceeded your expectations.

Although you have only been in town for a week, you notice that there are many other travelers in Deadwood. Of those travelers, Minnie Money and Elizabeth Money have caught your attention. The sister and daughter of Montgomery Money (an investor) from Chicago, you find it odd that Minnie and Elizabeth would travel to Deadwood without Montgomery Money. However, later you discovered that Montgomery was simply held up in St. Louis on business matters and would be joining his family late Thursday night, just in time for the Deadwood Poker Tournament Party on Friday.

Holly Hickok (a female card player) is another traveler who has been staying the week in Deadwood that peaks your interest. Unsure of where Holly was raised, Holly speaks with a Southern accent, setting her apart from the rest of the women in Deadwood. Mitch Maverick (a businessman) has also traveled to Deadwood from the East. Although Mitch is a businessman by profession, Mitch participated and won the poker tournament!

As the tournament winds down, you are looking forward to attending the Deadwood Poker Tournament Party. At the party, you are hoping to get acquainted with and enjoy the company of the rest of the people in Deadwood that you have not met yet on your travels. With so many characters in town, this is sure to be one rootin' tootin' celebration!

Acting and Dressing Your Part: As a traveler to Deadwood, a small frontier town in the Wild West, you stand out with your upscale wardrobe. Since it is 1874, you will dress consistent with the times which may include a button down shirt, vest, suspenders, a hat (bowler, slouch, cowboy, etc) and may even consider facial hair. *For more ideas on how to dress and a glossary of wild western words and phrases to use at the party, please see the party tips at www.nightofmystery.com. Cantina Girl C

As a cantina girl at the very popular Deadwood Cantina, you work nightly making money by selling dance tickets to cantina customers. Since the Deadwood Cantina is so highly-trafficked your job, is relatively easy and provides you a healthy income in a low-stress environment.

With the Deadwood Poker Tournament being held at the cantina, your business has definitely increased this week. It seems that there are travelers and card players from all walks of life coming to Deadwood for the tournament! The increased traffic in the cantina has worked to your advantage because it has translated into more dance tickets and more money for you.

Although the cantina is packed every night until close and generates a lot of sales at the bar, you have heard rumors that the cantina may be close to foreclosure. In light of the cantina's financial problems, Henrietta High-Stakes (the cantina owner's business partner) has instructed all the cantina girls that they are to sell dance tickets only to the highest-paying customers and are no longer allowed to give away ANY of their dance tickets for free. While this new mandate does not bother you, it did sadden Sally Starr (another cantina girl) who admires Clay Coldwell (a local card player) and often gives Clay dance tickets for free. A devout employee, Sally has been abiding by Henrietta's wishes and may have alienated Clay in the process, causing Clay to seek attention elsewhere.

In addition to demanding more profits from her employees, you also heard Henrietta threaten to leave Harry High-Stakes (his business partner) if the cantina did not start turning a large profit. In response, you followed Harry to witness him paying off Sheriff Sam (the sheriff). With the cantina so close to foreclosure and Henrietta demanding more cash flow to the cantina, you are confused how Harry would have money to pay the sheriff unless it was a dire need.

With the poker tournament coming to an end, you are going to be sad to see your increased business taper off but you are looking forward to the Deadwood Poker Tournament Party at the cantina. The party is sure to be a grand celebration! At the party, you expect to make a lot of money on all of the customers that will be in attendance to see the grand prize awarded.

Acting and Dressing Your Part: As a cantina girl, you will come to the party dressed to sell dance tickets and help everyone enjoy their time while at the cantina. Within your wardrobe you have many fancy clothes which may include a dress with a ruffled skirt and a bodice. In addition to a dress, you may accompany your outfit with a feather boa, feathers in your hair, long beads, concealed weapons, fringe or tassels. *For more ideas on how to dress and a glossary of wild western words and phrases to use at the party, please see the party tips at www.nightofmystery.com. Patron A

As a resident of Deadwood, you are a frequent visitor and a patron of the cantina. Since the town itself is still much in its settlement phase, businesses and residents are just starting to make Deadwood their home. When the Deadwood Cantina was established a little over a year ago, you welcomed the business with open arms. In the past year, you have seen the popularity of the cantina go from good to great. The Deadwood Cantina has become one of the prime locations to socialize and do business in town. As a resident, you visit the cantina nightly.

Since the town of Deadwood is still a budding frontier town, at times one might find it boring. However, with the Deadwood Poker Tournament in town there has been an air of liveliness that is very refreshing with new faces and continuous action in the cantina.

Not only has the poker tournament caused excitement this week but so has a bank robbery. Earlier this week, the Bank of Deadwood was held-up at gunpoint. Banker Bonnie (Banker Bob's business partner) was watching the premises and you are thankful that she did not get hurt, but the bandit made away with $20,000 that was in the safe. At the time of the robbery, you were not far from the bank and you caught a glimpse of the bandit as they made their getaway. If you saw the bandit again, you are certain that you would recognize them. Since Banker Bob (the bank owner) is offering reward money for the capture of the bandit, you have high hopes of finding the culprit and collecting your reward. While you believe the bandit is most likely one of the outlaws here in town this week (Barb Cassidy or Jesse Wales), Banker Bob seems to think otherwise. Additionally, you have noticed that Banker Bonnie (Bob's business partner) is frequenting the Deadwood Cantina more than ever this week. You find Bonnie's behavior odd, especially since Bonnie is not well-liked by Henrietta High-Stakes (the cantina owner's business partner) and the two women do not get along. Unsure of what to make of everyone's actions, you plan to piece together the whole story at the upcoming party.

While you are not looking forward to the poker tournament ending and Deadwood returning to its slower-paced lifestyle, you are excited to attend the Deadwood Poker Tournament Party. With the grand prize of $100,000 being awarded, there is certain to be a lot of activity at the cantina! You hope that the bandit will also be in attendance so you can earn the reward money for identifying the bank robber!

Acting and Dressing Your Part: As a resident of Deadwood, a small frontier town in the Wild West, you are a rough and rugged cowboy or cowgirl. To the party, you will want to wear your western best, which may consist of cowboy boots, a hat, a bandana, shoestring tie, spurs, fringe, chaps and any other accessory you desire. *For more ideas on how to dress and a glossary of wild western words and phrases to use at the party, please see the party tips at www.nightofmystery.com. The increased traffic in the cantina has worked to your advantage because it has translated into more dance tickets and more money for you.

Although the cantina is packed every night until close, you have heard rumors that the cantina may be close to going into foreclosure. Among the people that you suspect for the financial losses is Billie-The-Bartender (the cantina barmaid and bookkeeper). Recently, Harry turned over the management of the finances for the cantina to Billie. In your own opinion, Harry should have given the task to Henrietta High-Stakes (his business partner) since she is more trustworthy. While at the bar, Billie is always pre-occupied with the regulars in the cantina and, in particular, with Poker Alice (the poker dealer). Because of the cantina's popularity, you have no reason to suspect that the cantina would be in debt unless someone were stealing from the cantina. You think the culprit may be Billie. If the cantina closes, your job would be on the line, so it is imperative to you that you recover the missing money.

With the poker tournament coming to an end, you are going to be sad to see your increased business taper off, but you are looking forward to the Deadwood Poker Tournament Party at the cantina. Cantina Patron B

As a resident of Deadwood, you are a frequent visitor and a patron of the cantina. Since the town itself is still much in its settlement phase, businesses and residents are just starting to make Deadwood their home. When the Deadwood Cantina was established a little over a year ago, you welcomed the business with open arms. In the past year, you have seen the business of the cantina go from good to great. The Deadwood Cantina has become one of the prime locations to socialize and do business in town.

Since the town of Deadwood is still a budding frontier town, at times one might find it boring as you have. With the Deadwood Poker Tournament in town, however, there has been an air of liveliness that is very refreshing with new faces and continuous action in the cantina.

As a resident, you visit the cantina nightly as does Clay Coldwell, another resident who also entered the poker tournament this week. While you spend most of your time at the cantina playing cards and sipping sarsaparilla, Clay Coldwell spends much of his time on the dance floor, often with Sally Starr (a cantina girl). However, this week, you have noticed that Clay and Sally are not together at all! You are unsure if this is due to Clay's part in the tournament or if Sally is intentionally avoiding Clay. One person you have noticed on the dance floor a lot is Minnie Money (a debutante) dancing with Mitch Maverick (a businessman). The two appear to be close and you are uncertain how Minnie's family (Montgomery and Elizabeth Money) feel about Minnie keeping company with the businessman.

Although the cantina's business appears to be doing great, you have heard rumors that the cantina may be close to foreclosure from the bank. Since the cantina is packed most nights until close, you are uncertain how the cantina could be in any financial trouble, but your sources seem to be reliable. Because of your time at the cantina, you have observed that Harry High-Stakes (the owner of the cantina) is very devoted to his cantina and that he would do anything to keep his cantina up and running.

Despite how well you thought you knew Harry, you were shocked the other day when you witnessed Harry secretly paying off Sheriff Sam (the sheriff). Although you do not know why Harry was handing money over to Sheriff Sam, judging by the secretive nature of the exchange, you are certain that the transaction could not have been for an honest purpose.

While you are not looking forward to the poker tournament ending and Deadwood returning to its slower-paced lifestyle, you are excited to attend the Deadwood Poker Tournament Party. With the grand prize of $100,000 being awarded, there is certain to be a lot of action at the cantina!

Traveler B

A traveler from the East, you have come to Deadwood to visit for the grand poker tournament and party. While you were prospecting land just to the west of Deadwood, you heard of the tournament and traveled to Deadwood to participate in the festivities. The tournament and closing party are rumored to be two of the grandest events of the time and you did not want to miss out on the excitement.

Although you have only been in Deadwood for a week, you have already caught onto the dynamics of the small frontier town. In the heart of Deadwood is the Deadwood Cantina. Because the town is so small, the cantina is the center of action on a number of matters, both personal and professional. Despite the cantina's popularity and constant business, there are rumors that the cantina may be close to foreclosure. These rumors have a number of the cantina employees worried about their jobs if the cantina were to close. Among the employees, Billie-The-Bartender (the cantina barmaid) has taken on the responsibilities of trying to balance the cantina's finances to keep the cantina doors from closing. In addition, the cantina girls are trying to sell dance tickets from only the wealthiest customers, regardless of who they favor or wish to be dancing with. In addition, you have noticed that Montgomery Money (an investor) is also in Deadwood ready to purchase the cantina if the bank does repossess it.

As the tournament winds down, you are looking forward to attending the Deadwood Poker Tournament Party. At the party, you are looking forward to getting to know the rest of the people in Deadwood that you have not met just yet on your travels. With so many lively characters in town, it is sure to be one rootin' tootin good time!

Acting and Dressing Your Part: You are a traveler to Deadwood, a small frontier town in the Wild West. Since it is 1874, you will dress consistent with the times. The Deadwood Cantina has become one of the prime locations to socialize and do business in town. As a resident, you visit the cantina nightly as do many of the other locals, including Clay Coldwell (a local card player). While at the cantina, you witness a great deal including an interesting rivalry between Barb Cassidy (an outlaw), Billie-The-Bartender (the barmaid) and Poker Alice (the poker dealer). From an outsider's point of view, it appears that Barb Cassidy cares a great deal for Billie-The-Bartender who cares a great deal for Poker Alice. Since Alice has a very uppity exterior, you are uncertain of her feelings for Billie.

Since the town of Deadwood is still a budding frontier town, at times one might find it boring as you have. With the Deadwood Poker Tournament in town, however, there has been an air of liveliness that is very refreshing with new faces and continuous action in the cantina.

Being a resident of Deadwood, you have noticed a great number of foreign faces in the city including Jesse Wales (an outlaw). Knowing that Jesse and Harry High-Stakes (the cantina owner) are old friends put your mind at ease. However, after the recent bank robbery in town, you are not certain if Jesse is here to visit acquaintances or for business matters. As luck would have it, another old companion of Harry's visiting this week is Gambling Jack (a card player). Being that Harry is known for his high-stakes card playing, it is no surprise to you that Jack and Harry are friends. Ironically, the one person who did seem surprised at the acquaintance of the two men was Anna Belle (Gambling Jack's backer). Following the tournament, you have heard some complaints that Harry favored Gambling Jack in the tournament, but you do not believe those rumors to be true since Jack (like the other card players) had to pay the same ante fee to get into the tournament. To top it off, Gambling Jack did not win the tournament, which would further indicate that Jack was given no special treatment in the tournament.

While you are not looking forward to the poker tournament ending and Deadwood returning to its slower-paced lifestyle, you are excited to attend the Deadwood Poker Tournament Party. With the grand prize of $100,000 being awarded, there is certain to be a lot of action at the cantina!

Cantina Girl E

As a cantina girl at the very popular Deadwood Cantina, you work nightly making money by selling dance tickets to cantina customers. Since the Deadwood Cantina is so highly-trafficked your job is relatively easy and provides you a healthy income in a low-stress environment.

With the Deadwood Poker Tournament being held at the cantina, your business has definitely increased this week. It seems that there are travelers and card players from all walks of life coming to Deadwood for the tournament! The increased traffic in the cantina has worked to your advantage because it has translated into more dance tickets and more money for you.

Despite the increase in dance-ticket sales for you, the overall cantina profits have been dwindling. Because of this, Henrietta High-Stakes (Harry's business partner) has asked that you only sell dance tickets to the highest-paying customers. While this new mandate does not concern you, Sally Starr (another cantina girl) has been very distraught over having to avoid Clay Coldwell (a regular, lower-paying customer). Because of Sally's reaction, you believe that Sally is truly devoted to Clay, but treasures her job too much to sacrifice anything for it.

Although you have made a lot of money by selling dance tickets during the tournament week, you know you could have made even more had the circumstances been different. While at the cantina, both Holly Hickok (a female card player) and Minnie Money (a debutante from the East) have been stealing a lot of the attention away from you and the other cantina girls by dancing with the men free-of-charge. Had these women not been giving their dance tickets away, your profits from the week would surely have been greater. Holly seems to rely on her fake southern accent a little too much for your liking and you wish that others could see through Holly's concocted exterior like you do. You are certain Holly has something to hide and you intend to find out what it is! Minnie Money also has been taking away attention, particularly from Mitch Maverick, the winner of the poker tournament. Even though Minnie comes from a conservative family, she seems to have a definite wild side to her and you wonder if Minnie's family (Elizabeth and Montgomery Money) would approve.

With the poker tournament coming to an end, you are going to be sad to see your increased business taper off but you are looking forward to the Deadwood Poker Tournament Party at the cantina. The party is sure to be a grand celebration! At the party, you expect to make a lot of money on all of the customers that will be in attendance to see the grand prize awarded to the winner of the tournament, Mitch Maverick.

As a frequent visitor of the cantina, you have noticed a lot about the card players that have come through town this week and they have intrigued you greatly. In particular, you have taken notice of Gambling Jack, one of the final four players in the tournament. Gambling Jack is known throughout the West as the best hand in poker and has not lost a major tournament in five years! Unfortunately, Gambling Jack did not prove to be as good of a player as his reputation suggested since he lost in the final round earlier today. While observing Jack, you also noticed that he has a rather close relationship with Harry High-Stakes. At times in the tournament, you think that you witnessed Gambling Jack cheating, but since Harry did not confront Jack, you wonder if Harry was giving special exceptions to favor his friend and allow Jack to advance as far as he did in the tournament.

While you are not looking forward to the poker tournament ending and Deadwood returning to its slower-paced lifestyle, you are excited to attend the Deadwood Poker Tournament Party. With the grand prize of $100,000 being awarded, there is certain to be a lot of activity at the cantina!

Traveler C

As a traveler from the East, you have journeyed to Deadwood to visit for the grand poker tournament and all the excitement that it has promised. At first, you considered entering in the tournament but once you saw some of the names that were also entering the tournament (Gambling Jack, Clay Coldwell and Holly Hickok, to name a few), you realized that you would not stand a chance at winning with such poker greats in attendance. Instead, you spent your money on enjoying yourself at the cantina.

Although you have only been in Deadwood for a week, you have already caught onto the dynamics of the small frontier town. The town is run by Sheriff Sam, a crooked sheriff who is willing to do just about anything for money, and Sam isn't too sly about it either. In fact earlier this week, you witnessed Sheriff Sam taking money from Harry High-Stakes, the cantina owner. In addition, the laziness of Sheriff Sam is almost too much to take. Just a few days ago, the Bank of Deadwood was held up at gunpoint and Sheriff Sam has done little investigating into the crime. Banker Bob (the bank owner), has made it apparent how very displeased he is by Sam's lack of will to investigate. It appears as if Banker Bob is ready to take matters into his own hands when it comes to bringing the bank robber to justice. In contrast, Banker Bonnie (Banker Bob's business partner) has done little to help with the investigation. In fact, Bonnie has been spending even more time at the cantina this week than normal.

As the tournament winds down, you are looking forward to attending the Deadwood Poker Tournament Party. At the party, you are looking forward to getting to know the rest of the people in Deadwood that you have not met just yet on your travels. With all of the characters in and around Deadwood, you are certain the party will be a rootin', tootin' good time!

BANK OF DEADWOOD

Dear Mr. High-Stakes,

It is with great regret that I must notify you that the bank is placing your saloon into foreclosure.

Due to the great amount of late and missed payments on your loan, there is no other measure that I feel that we can take.

You will need to come up with $75,000 by this upcoming week in order to keep your saloon doors open and under your own occupation. If this amount is not received in the time mentioned above, the bank will repossess the loan and put the saloon on the market to another buyer.

We have already started this process and found what we consider to be some potentially great offers should you not be able to come up with the money.

Thank you for your business and please let me know if there are any other banking needs of your that I can meet in the future.

With deep regards,

Banker Bob

Wealthy Man Not-So Wealthy Anymore

One of Chicago's wealthiest was taken for a ride earlier this month. Mr. Montgomery Money was the victim of yet another heist of the con man, Victer Hammick. It is reported that Mr. Montgomery lost a great deal of money in the scandal that is noted to be one of the greatest cons of this time. Although the exact amount has yet to be disclosed, the sum of money loss by Mr. Montgomery is said to be no less than $150,000. When asked about the welfare of his current company and the financial stability of the company, Mr. Montgomery refused to comment. Sources close to Mr. Montgomery indicate that while Montgomery is a very wealthy man, this is a definite blow to his pocketbook as well as his ego. Other sources have noted that Mr. Montgomery's business stature has also dropped and that he is finding it harder to create deals on the east, after having been taken for such a fool.

The con man, who was known to Mr. Montgomery as Victer Hammick is known throughout the east for targeting wealthy people and circumstances in which he reaps money by lieing, cheating, stealing and any combination thereof. It is believed that Mr. Hammick is wanted currently in 5 states and has gone by multiple aliases such as Camm C. Kirevith and Mike V. Cramicht. No further knowledge of this man exists.

INTRODUCTION

Welcome to the Deadwood Cantina, my humble, but prosperous establishment. For those of you who don't know me, I am Harry High-Stakes, the owner of this cantina and the organizer of this tournament and party. I want to thank you all for traveling so far to be with us here tonight. I am sure that each and every one of you has a special place and purpose here tonight and I am glad that you all made it here to celebrate with us. Shortly, you will be receiving an envelope with some instructions. Once read, I am sure that you will have plenty that you will also want to accomplish tonight.

Throughout the night, I ask that you please keep your eye out for those going above and beyond their call of duty. Along with the other festivities in store for you tonight, you will also be asked to vote on those people in Deadwood who have made your night most enjoyable by their costume, their acting ability and the amount of money they accumulate throughout the night. As you may or may not know, bribery, extortion, blackmail and whatever creative means you use to spend your money are not only expected, but encouraged here at the Deadwood Cantina.

Which brings me to why we are all gathered here. Tonight marks the end of our First Annual Deadwood Poker Tournament. It was a week long tournament of poker where we had some of the best card players from the West, and from the East, playing in Deadwood to compete for a purse of one hundred grand. The tournament ended earlier today in a final game between Holly Hickok, Gambling Jack, Mitch Maverick and Clay Coldwell. I would personally like to congratulate Mitch Maverick on being the grand champion of the first ever Deadwood Annual Poker Tournament.

Later this evening, I will be awarding the grand prize of one hundred grand to Mr. Maverick. Until then, please sit back, relax, enjoy the party and spend some money in my beautiful cantina and on dance tickets with my beautiful girls. I am sure that you all have some catching up to do with one another before the real festivities begin.

Thank you.

INVESTIGATION DIRECTIONS

As you can all see, there was a murder that just occurred amongst us all. The victim, Mr. Mitch Maverick, who was also the winner of the poker tournament, was just shot dead BEFORE he was able to claim his winnings from the tournament.

At this time, I need to ask for your full cooperation in this investigation. It is imperative that no one leaves the premises as you are all considered suspects.

Shortly, you will be receiving an envelope marked with your name. You will want to open that envelope after I finish speaking and read that information carefully. In the envelope, you will find more information and objectives to assist you in conducting your own investigation. For some of you, it will give you bargaining and blackmailing power. For one other, it will be the secret that you are indeed the murderer. Conduct your investigation wisely and let no one know your secrets that you are not to reveal. I urge you to talk to anyone you suspect, not just those listed on your sheet, for you do not know what secrets everyone holds! It is now that you will try to uncover the possible motives each of you may have for wanting Mitch Maverick dead.

After I have questioned some of you and conducted my own investigation into this crime, I will be presenting the tangible evidence that I have found. Once presented, you will then get a chance to examine the evidence before making a final accusation as to who the killer is among you. Until then, I suggest you conduct your own investigation by questioning each other and uncovering possible motives for the death of Mitch Maverick.

Thank you and I will be addressing you when I have the evidence to show you.

EVIDENCE PRESENTATION

After review of all the facts of this murder and conducting my own investigation, these are the facts and evidence that I have uncovered pertaining to this murder.

At approximately eight o'clock tonight, Friday, October 20th, 1874, Mitch Maverick was shot dead. Mitch Maverick was a businessman from the East who travelled to Deadwood to participate in the poker tournament that started earlier this week. Mitch Maverick had won the tournament and was waiting to be awarded his prize money when the lights went out and he was shot dead.

Upon further investigation, I was able to uncover some evidence to help in the investigation.

EXHIBIT A (hold up exhibit A) is the weapon we found at the scene of the crime. The weapon is a Colt Single Action Army revolver. After dusting it, I found fresh gunpowder residue on the handle, which revealed some fingerprints. Because of the smudges in the fingerprints - and the fact that it is 1874 - I am unable to clearly match the prints with any of the guests here at the party tonight.

EXHIBIT B (hold up exhibit B) is a handwritten list of signals that was turned over. The list of signals was written in Mitch Maverick's handwriting and indicates that he may have been cheating in the tournament with one of the other players. Which player, we are not sure of however. The list was turned over by Miss Holly Hickok who claims that she confiscated it from Mr. Maverick's room last night. Miss Hickok also claims that she was not the accomplice in cheating. We have no proof supporting or contradicting either of her claims.

EXHIBIT C (hold up exhibit C) is a foreclosure notice from the bank indicating that the cantina is in great financial trouble.

EXHIBIT D (hold up exhibit D) is a newspaper clipping that was found on the cantina floor. This article indicates that Mr. Montgomery Money does not have as much money he would like us all to believe.

EXHIBIT E (hold up exhibit E) is a telegram received by Jesse Wales instructing Jesse to kill a person by the initials of M.M. Jesse Wales claims that they are innocent and never followed through with the orders. Again, we have nothing to confirm or dispute this claim.

EXHIBIT F (hold up exhibit F) is a bandana found at the scene of the bank robbery earlier this week. The bandana was turned over by Sheriff Sam, who is investigating the bank robbery case.

EXHIBIT G (hold up exhibit G) is a reward poster for the apprehension of "Assassin Alice".

I will leave these articles of evidence out so that you all can review them as you make your own claims about who the murderer is. Thank you for your help with the investigation.
